Measuring Up: Tools for Assessing Information Literacy

Friday, November 9, 2007, 9AM-3PM
Loyola Graduate Center, 8890 McGaw Road, Columbia MD

Hammering out information literacy assessment plans? Confused about blueprints for building a successful assessment program? From establishing an assessment environment, to weighing options, to putting assessment into action, this workshop will help you answer the many questions encountered in the assessment process.

The Blueprint
Patricia Dwyer, Associate VP for Academic Affairs, College of Notre Dame of Maryland, defines assessment and describes a process for establishing an assessment environment.

The Nuts and Bolts
Thomas Arendall-Salvetti, University of Baltimore, Beth Mulherrin, UMUC, and Susan Cooperstein, Loyola/Notre Dame, review the variety of assessment tools available and considerations for their use.

The Finishing Touches
Marguerite Weber, Director, First & Second Year Program, University of Baltimore, addresses how to follow up on your assessment, including closing the loop and program improvement.
